Library News

Happening Now?

Our readers are utilizing strategies that will enable them to select books which will enhance independent reading practice. Students are exploring a variety of genres as they identify selections that meet their needs. Nonfiction will be highlighted in order to identify how authors use text features to help readers understand information. Student reading and research in the biography collection is continuing as students prepare to present what they have learned.

Our school wide Read Across America celebration has generated much reading enthusiasm as we honor one of our favorite authors, Dr. Seuss.

Fun Fact: Writing as Dr. Seuss, he wrote 44 children's books. These books have been translated into more than 15 languages and have sold over 200 million copies around the world!

Coming Soon? Make it @ your library...a fun way to create.

March into reading by checking out the Reading Is Fundamental site @<http://www.rif.org/>. A great resource for families. You'll be able to enjoy marvelous reading and writing activities when you use the March calendar of activities. Check it out @ http://www.rif.org/media/Mar17_calendar-k-5.pdf
